In Vaimaila Urale's work Koko & Taufolo the artist and her family in Samoa show us how they make a special dish made from roasted taufolo (breadfruit). It's a cooking process that involves the whole family and at the end they all gather together to enjoy what they've made. Yum!

Draw some of your favourite foods on your plate and tell us where they come from.

Whakataukī scramble

A whakataukī is a proverb. Many cultures have their own special proverbs that have been passed down from generation to generation to offer wisdom and guidance.

The whakataukī and their english translations have been mixed up!

Draw a line to connect the whakataukī to their correct translation. (hint: use the gallery roomsheet to help)

Nāu te rourou, nāku te rourou ka ora ai a tātou katoa.

First pick the highest breadfruit

Ko te kai o te rangatira he kōrero.
Conversation is the food of chiefs.

With your basket and my basket
combined we all thrive

Se'i lua'i lou le 'ulu taumamao

People are the foundation of a leader,
while food is the sky for the people

I maika'i ke kalo i ka 'ōhā.

Conversation is the food of chiefs.

王者以民为本，民以食为天

The goodness of the taro is judged by the young plant it produces.
